

Margo had a flashback to the time she'd been asked to the senior prom by a succession of anxious young men. "On two conditions," she said.

"Name them."

"First, we get rid of this thing." She plucked the now unfresh flower from his lapel and tossed it into the gutter. "It makes you look like a Red Sox fan."

"I am an admirer of the youngest DiMaggio. And condition number two?"

She took his arm, resisting a strong urge to kick off her pumps and go barefoot.

"No dancing." 🐦
