

Scrambled barnard

by Mark Lagasse

Englishman Robert Barnard (1936-2013) started his career as an academic, but soon made his name in mystery fiction. He always said that Agatha Christie was his favorite crime writer, and in 1980 he published a popular critique of her work called "A Talent to Deceive." To unravel our deception, simply unscramble the letters of each numbered entry to spell the title of a Barnard novel. For example, ANARCHISTS NEED DEPTH would be Death and the Princess.

- | | |
|------------------------|------------------------|
| 1. FORMAL RACE FLAG | 7. GAY ANCESTOR'S |
| 2. SALT POTS | RIFT |
| 3. LORDS FORCE | 8. THOSE FEARSOME |
| HUMOR | HUTS |
| 4. MY SINGLE FAD | 9. CANNIBALS RAVAGE |
| 5. AIDES' ILLICIT COUP | DIAL |
| 6. BAD, HOLY BACTERIA | 10. NATE PAYS OFF COLE |